POETRY

OLD GHOSTS.
When a ship in a harbor drops anchor
On the crest of the sea, the tide
When the last of the tattered passengers
Has clambered to boats by the side;
When the work of unloading the cargo
Wails the light of the morning day,
Aboard, in the night, the crew
Come tarry old ghosts and gray.
They sit on the fo'c'sle hatchways,
They smoke and they spit and they chew,
And they yawn of the days they were
Gallies,
Of the terrible that engendered knew.
They swear at the present day "man,"
And a grin plays around on their lips
As they talk of landlubbers afloat,
And the little they know about ships.
And oath follows oath until midnight
Is done and the moon is high,
When the call of the bourn commands
Them
And they vanish with never a sigh,
And never a trace left behind them,
And everything shipshape and square—
It is only a dreamer who Jives them
Can tell that they ever were there.
—Edmund Leamy, in Charleston News.

(On re-reading a Life of Mozart after a Mozart Symphony.)

Mighty master, with the light
Of the stars upon thy head,
When the angels look down on earth,
What the choir of glory say,
God Himself to thee imparted
An unspeakable sense of duty
And a purpose heart-hearted
For the mortal day.
Hunger came and malice quickened,
Dark insinuations from the night,
Shadows of disaster thickened,
To the very grave around thee;
But the life of earth with thee
Quench thy spirit's fiery heaven,
And thy genius dwell forever
On the golden peaks of heaven.
There was granted thee the sharing
Of the secret's ecstasy—
Tenderness and valiant daring,
Grandeur ranging earth and sky,
From the depths of human feeling
Rose these symphonies sublime
Where devotion will be leavened
To the utmost bounds of time.
Child immortal, all creation
Speaks of thee in sun and shower,
Charm and awe and ever new,
Craves thy more than kingly power,
Power, in spite of rude derision,
Pain and strife that never cease,
Still to follow forth the vision
Of the heavenly heights of peace.
—Little Flanckney Hill, in Philadelphia Ledger.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mayme—I have so many callers pestering the life out of me I hardly know what to do with them all.
Grace—Why, how long have you been a telephone operator?
Mayme—She is determined to be a musician, but cannot decide whether to make a specialty of the violin or piano.
"Has she no positive predilection for either?"
"Oh, yes, but some of her friends think she looks better standing, and others that sitting is more becoming to her."
"They say that misfortune came in pairs. Do you think so?"
"Yes, when the other fellow has three of a kind."
"I suppose you get a lot of comfort out of that Palm Beach suit you bought."
"Not much. Whenever I wear it the weather turns out and when it's hot enough so I really need it the darn thing is always in the wash."
Charles, aged four, was playing in the yard when his father called him to come into the house. He did not respond at once, but however, his father asked whether he didn't hear him call.
"Yes, papa," answered Charles, "but I didn't hear you very plain."
Jinks: "The world is full of financial problems to be solved."
Binks: "Yes, and one of the hardest to figure out is how all this cash can wear silk stockings."
Mrs. Swellman: "I want you to make my bathing suit this season. I was much taken with the one you made me last season."
Dressmaker: "Indeed?"
Mrs. Swellman: "Yes, the camera flashes simply camped on my trail."

It is estimated that 250,000 piles of silk cocoons, representing a value of $900,000, can be produced this year.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ROYAL ARCANUM.
At the forty-fourth session of the supreme council held at Niagara Falls, Ontario, on Friday, June 17, Brother Charles H. Hostley, a member of Davenport Council No. 709, New Haven, was unanimously elected supreme regent for the term of two years.
He served as a member of the supreme council at a representative from the grand council of Connecticut from May, 1901, to May, 1903, when he was elected as supreme regent. In 1910 he was promoted to the position of supreme warden and in 1912, elected supreme guide.
In 1913 he was elected supreme chaplain and continued in this position until 1918, when he was promoted to the position of supreme vice regent, which position he filled until his recent promotion to the supreme regency.
In his home jurisdiction Brother Hostley served in the several offices of the grand council, becoming past grand regent. In April, 1909, he was elected grand secretary of his jurisdiction and served continuously for twenty years, retiring at the last annual session of the council.

grand council at which time the members of the grand and subordinate councils presented him with a beautiful watch as a testimonial of their regard for him. During his service upon the executive committee of the supreme council he has acted as chairman of the committee on office operations and supervision in which capacity he has acquired an intimate knowledge of the executive department of the order.
Brother Hostley first joined the Royal Arcanum in 1888 and immediately entered upon a career of active service for the upbuilding of the order which has continued without interruption to the present time.
He comes to office as supreme regent with the record of having filled every elective office in the line of staff officers in the supreme council with the exception of supreme secretary, supreme treasurer and supreme editor.

A native of New England, born in Plymouth, Connecticut, where he lived until 1887, when he entered upon the practice of law immediately after his graduation from Yale university with the degree of bachelor of laws in the city of New Haven, where he now resides.
TALL CEDARS.
New London forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, at a meeting held Thursday night in Union lodge temple in New London, elected temporary officers and made plans for the formal institution, which is to be accomplished during the second week in September.
Edward C. Silk, member of Brainard lodge, No. 102, A. F. and A. M., was elected grand tall cedar. To Mr. Silk belongs the credit for securing the organization of the forest. He came to New London from one of the southern states where he has witnessed some of the good times enjoyed by this organization, and he felt that New London Masons ought to avail themselves of a similar opportunity.
Morris B. Payne, past master of Union lodge, No. 81, was elected deputy grand tall cedar.
Charles E. Rice of Union lodge, No. 21, was elected junior deputy grand tall cedar.
Louis B. Lincoln, a member of Eastern Star lodge, No. 44, William M. Knowlton, past master of Union lodge, No. 81, was elected treasurer. The trustees elected are: Frank J. Alexander, Blirt O. Fowler and Alfred H. Pollock.
At the next meeting further details will be attended to and when the forest is ready to be instituted, it is expected that a degree team will come here from New Jersey and initiate the local men and following election install the officers.

Any master Mason in good standing is eligible. The charter will be closed as soon as 25 more names are secured. This order has a national membership of nearly 100,000 with 71 forests scattered throughout the various states mostly along the Atlantic seaboard. There were no forests in New England and by effecting organization in New London that city has the distinction of being the first in New England to get in line for the institution of this social feature of Masonic interests and if the plans of the local men mature there is going to be some real fun in store for the Masons in the not distant future.
MANCHESTER UNITY.
Progressive past grand lodge, No. 2, held its meeting Wednesday evening in St. Andrew's hall room. The meeting opened in due form with President Charles Barnes of Samaritan lodge of Baltic presiding. One application for membership was received. It was voted to send an invitation to the Bridgeport degree team to come here to work a class of members for this blue degree. The meeting closed with prayer by Chaplain Sterling Nelson.
HIBERNIANS.
The fifty-second national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was formally opened at Detroit Tuesday following a pontifical high mass at St. Peter and Paul's church, celebrated by the Right Rev. M. J. Gallagher, bishop of the Detroit diocese and national chaplain of the order.
The Very Rev. John Cavanaugh of the Catholic university of America at Washington, delivered the sermon. The first business session came on Wednesday and the convention continued through the week.
Among the matters to be taken up are reports of committees that have been investigating proposed changes in the ritual of the order and a plan for national insurance.

The report of Judge James E. Deery of Indianapolis, the president, showed an increase in the organization's membership for the first time in eleven years. It was announced.
NEWARK.
Hope Aebekah lodge, No. 21, at its meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 20, elected its officers for the coming year. The lodge hall voted to have a picnic on Friday, July 29, selecting the drawbridge as the place to go. Conveyance will be by auto truck and the party will be picked up at 5 o'clock at Washington square and the Laurel Hill bridge. Officers will probably go by their own cars, but it is expected about 50 in all will enjoy the picnic. A chowder will be served. Mrs. Ora Spencer was appointed on the committee to have charge of the refreshments and John J. Parsons in charge of transportation.
ELKS.
New London lodge of Elks has appointed a committee to invite President Harding to visit New London while he is in the north to attend the Plymouth celebration. The committee comprises R. B. Harry L. McGuffee, Hon. Daniel M. Griffin, Hon. E. Frank Morgan, Thomas F. Dorney, Julian D. Moran and Thomas E. Donohue.
CITIZENS OF GROTON.
That the citizens of Groton are polluting the waters of the Thames river by using the river as a "dump," and that the discarded refuse and litter thrown into the water is being cast up along the Groton shore line below the borough and ruining the bathing beaches, were charges made public Friday by Dr. F. W. Hewes, health officer of Groton.
That he had been the recipient of numerous complaints from summer residents at Eastern Point, from the Groton hotel, and from persons connected with the Shennecossett Beach association.
The wide distribution and number of people making the complaints led Dr. Hewes to the conclusion that he is preparing to ask the warden and burgess of the borough to draft and pass an ordinance at their next meeting making it a serious offense for such disposition of refuse to continue. Bathing on the beaches are reported to be suffering from the presence of the presence of such litter to bathers. Dr. Hewes points out the unsanitariness of such debris and states that the borough citizens should learn to show some consideration for the aesthetic appearance of the shore line. Broken hair, old mattresses, horse blankets, cooler, and other refuse and refuse are reported to be dumped into the river.
"The borough provides for the proper collection and removal of such material," Dr. Hewes said, adding solemnly that if things continued the way they are, it would be called some day to remove some bathers from the mass of 15 feet of rag carpet or the wire coils of a mattress.

would be called some day to remove some bathers from the mass of 15 feet of rag carpet or the wire coils of a mattress.
GROTON IRON WORKS YARD.
HAS NO WORK AHEAD
The ferry Lieutenant Flaherty, being bulky for the city of Boston by the Groton Iron Works will be completed next week and will leave for Boston under her own power.
The boat is the latest in the class of its kind, being an all steel boat and fitted out with every modern convenience known to ferryboats. It is named after a war hero, Lieutenant Flaherty of the Yankee Division.
About 110 employees remain at the plant and after the ferry boat leaves an unprovided no other contracts are received, no more work will remain for them. In this case it is expected that a few will be retained for watchmen and cleaning up the plant.
